Personality

If you predominantly wear the colour grey it will reveal the following about your personality:

You have intelligence, wisdom and exhibit great self-control and you are not easily swayed by outside influences. You are capable of coming to impartial solutions because of your emotional stability and flair for fair judgment. Others can depend on you because of your mature and reliable attitude.

You approach life and its problems in a practical and conservative manner, and unless proved otherwise, you will stick to your own known methods or ideas and will not easily change your views.

Quality rather than quantity is important to you and you will gladly 'pay that bit extra'.

Be cautious about becoming isolated and lonely because you can become emotionally detached. Too much grey can result in tunnel vision or narrow mindedness leaving no room for emotion, warmth or simple daydreaming.

More about grey

The colour grey is the colour of our brain cells, the intellect, or when our emotions are ruled by our intellect. Grey is the colour of boredom, no play, no fun. Watch that you do not become a 'grey mouse'. During grey days, we easily get depressed and bored. Grey is made up of black and white and when people think black and white, it is one way or the other, there is no in between. Therefore, grey can also be related to quality, straightforwardness and professionalism where emotions are not allowed to interfere with the intellect or the mind.
