Personality

If you predominantly wear the colour magenta/fuchsia it will reveal the following about your personality:

You are a reliable, considerate and supportive person. By nature you always put in that extra effort, usually beyond the call of duty. Be aware that you do not expect the same amount of compassion, love, and work returned because this could be a source of disappointment to you. You have a kind and compassionate nature with a very big and sensitive heart. You have the ability to give love, perhaps too much and this can turn into smothering love. When your love or attention is not returned or answered, this can give cause to frustration and resentment. Find time for yourself to show as much compassion and love for yourself as you do for others. Sometimes you can be too hard on yourself, expecting yourself to be flawless and perfect.

You are energetic, bright and funny, easily drawing people to you. Your considerate and supportive personality makes you a loving and helpful partner and friend who is happy to yield to the opinions of others. You are flexible in your views and ideas and always willing to review these and make changes if necessary.

You love the little things in life and are thrilled with simple gestures like a single flower or a pat on the back.

More about magenta/fuchsia

Magenta/fuchsia is the hot pink. A combination of red and violet, the first and last colour of the rainbow. Aura-Soma relates this colour with the 8th chakra of the body, a chakra above the violet/lavender, the crown chakra. This colour is according to Aura-Soma related to sacrificial love. Especially, women who predominantly wear this colour have to watch that they do not smother others with their love and care, losing sight of their own needs.

Magenta/fuchsia is a bright and joyful colour that attracts attention. A dislike of this colour relates to a disappointment where you did not receive the attention and care you wanted. When you start to wear this colour there is a readiness for change or new venture. The inspiration (violet) is there with a need to materialize (red) the idea.
